Boys' Brigade Committee to Begin Work Shortly.

When Colonel W. F. Allen departed for the Coast recently he left in the hands of a committee of the Boy's Brigade in the neighborhood of $2,500 available for turning the leased lands at Kauluwela, Honolulu, into a playground and field for all kinds of sports. The committee will shortly commence operations, the initial work being the leveling-off of the five-acre plot, grassing portions of it and laying out an oval track.

The committee now is considering the best procedure and the most economical methods by which the money can be made to complete the greater part of the work. The hope is uppermost with the committee that work can be commenced before wet weather sets in in earnest, so that by the opening of spring the field will be available for the baseball season. At present the committee is not considering a grandstand, which will be expensive and out of proportion to the sum of money now on hand. The remainder of the Boys' Brigade field plans, however, will be adhered to in the main. On one side of the oval track there will be a 120-yard straightaway course.

The money which Colonel W. F. Allen secured for the use of the Boys' Brigade is loaned, on the supposition that returns will be such that it will be repaid, although no security was The Boys' Brigade grounds have two approaches, one from Vineyard and another from Liliha street.

Henry Judd, son of the late Chief Justice Judd, has assumed charge of the Boys' Brigade Industrial School work. He is a Yale man, and will be in charge for a year. Ira Eskew, of the Kamehameha School, is in charge of the industrial department. As a source ing out large numbers of small 15x7 inch boxes, neatly covered with pyrographical designs. On opening the cover a pyrographic picture of Dia-Head is shown, as well as a map of Hawaii in the bottom. Resting in the box is a miniature canoe, with outrigger, all complete. These will be sold here and on the mainland, and the boys are to be paid for their work, which is performed after school hours. The boxes will be highly polished, and will be splendid specimens of the industrial work being undertaken by the Boys' Brigade.

The real commencement of the social work among the boys will be next week, when an entertainment is to be given at Kakaako.

ADVENTURE ON THE GALE SWEPT PALI

Deputy Sheriff Chillingworth has faced death in many forms during his police career but few of the incidents were as exciting as his adventure Tuesday night and early yesterday morning on the gale-swept Pali. For hours he and special officer Apana tried to cross from the Koolau side to Honolulu beset by the terrible winds which raged paying of expenses.
